The congress will provide the opportunity for researchers and clinicians from around the world to come together and share their research and experiences in basic, clinical and translational pharmacology and clinical toxicology.

Singapore is a major international hub with over 100 airlines offering direct flights from all over the world. It hosts world class universities, internationally recognised hospitals and research institutes, as well as being an ideal venue with a warm climate and a fantastic base for exploring some of the great attractions that Asia has to offer.
